THE INTERIOR DESIGNERS

Noted style gurus and architects, plus new faces for the future

TODHUNTER EARLE

One of the UK's most well-established interior design names – this firm, set up by Emily Todhunter and Kate Earle in 1988, does a subtle, modern take on classic country-house style. Though many of its projects are homes in London and the countryside, the studio has also designed serene interiors for Raymond Blanc's Oxford hotel, Belmond Le Manoir aux Quat'Saisons, todhunterearle.com

2 SIMS HILDITCH

'A fresh approach to the English look' is how Emma Sims-Hilditch (right) describes her decorating style. We'd also add that it's classic, comfortable and supremely easy to live with, focusing on calm colours and a masterly approach to fabrics (she started out as a maker of curtains and soft furnishings). You might not know that Emma is also the creative director of furniture brand Neptune, which epitomises her relaxed aesthetic, simshilditch.com

Katharine Pooley

This designer's opulent yet understated style is shaped by her love of travel. Global treasures, including shagreen, gemstones and exotic woods, often feature in her work. Her aesthetic is summed up in the design of her own home, a historic castle in Scotland, katharinepooley.com
